

NATIONALIZE TRANS-CONTINENTAL RAILROADS
OF DOMINION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Winnipeg, Man., August 8.—Investigation of Western Canada's railways, with a view of possibly nationalizing transcontinental lines, at least so far as the handling of mail is concerned, was started here today. Alfred H. Smith, president of the New York Central lines; Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Canadian board of railway commissioners; and Sir George Fairs, well known British statistician, formed the commission of investigation.

Joe says:

"No use talkin' to me about any other tobacco, 'cause they ain't no other like NIGGER HAIR. I've tried lots of 'em an' I know. They s'noes smokes as slow, an' cool an' fragrant in my pipe, like those long, curly, silky strands of good old NIGGER HAIR tobacco. An' what's more, NIGGER HAIR makes the tastiest chew I ever put my teeth into."

That's the way thousands of men feel about NIGGER HAIR. Nothing can switch them from this famous old brand.

NIGGER HAIR gives complete enjoyment and healthful satisfaction all day long, all year 'round, year after year.

NIGGER HAIR

Long Cut Tobacco

is all ripe, mild Burley leaf, made rich and sweet and mellow by careful ageing and blending—made slow-burning and cool-smoking by cutting into long, curly shreds of fragrant tobacco. This distinctive, curly Long Cut gave the brand its name many years ago.

Never mind what brand you're using now. Just give NIGGER HAIR a week's trial—smoke it and chew it steady, day after day—and you'll admit you've found a better tobacco in NIGGER HAIR.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN SHADOW OF PEAK WHERE NOAH LANDED

Stars and Stripes and Pretty American Nurses Working in Heart of Famous Bible Land.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Petrograd, Aug. 8.—The Stars and Stripes today flap in breezes wafted across the land of the Holy Bible. The flag flies free over the door of an American hospital where pretty American girls and able American doctors care for Russian sick and wounded.

The hospital is at Khoy, 45 miles south of Jula on the frontier between Russia and Persia. To the northwest of Khoy the icy dome of Mount Ararat stands limit against the sky, 17,000 feet high, or nearly 2,000 feet higher than Mount Blanc. Here Noah's ark is supposed to have rested after the flood.

To the south west of Khoy lie the slopes where Arabian and Isaac tended their flocks. There too is the scene of the most famous of all famous crimes, the murder of Abel by his brother Cain.

There is no railroad from Jula to Khoy and the dirt road is very bad. It takes four horses to pull a carriage. At first the way lies in a desert with barren mountains on both sides but gradually, as one approaches Khoy, the terrain smoothes itself out and richer soil, aided by irrigation, gives vegetation a chance, and here one still sees droves of sheep grazing where they did in the days when Abraham began Isaac.

In a valley of orchards and gardens lies Khoy, surrounded by its mud walls. Low mud houses along narrow, crooked streets surrounding gayly decorated and colorful bazaars which form the center of the place, compose the city, while just outside is the conspicuous building of the American hospital with its Yankee flag flying, a building long, broad and squat.

The hospital staff, including Dr. Hazlett, Dr. Dickey, Dr. Cline and several American nurses, originally was at Kiev, but when the Russian retreat from Galicia began all hospitals were evacuated to points further east. At first the Americans tended wounded at a temporary hospital near the Kiev railway stations, but upon being assigned to the Army of the Caucasus they moved to Tiflis. From Tiflis they went to Khoy to be nearer the Russian front then operating in the region of Erzerum.

At first there were many contagious cases. And the mud houses were crowded with sick refugees from Armenia, Syria and other districts. There were many children too, to be looked after, many of them in the most pitiful condition. One child mentioned by the American Commandant, Attache Baker who visited the hospital, had been found by the wayside in a dying condition, her legs below the knees frozen and falling, her face and covering her body. She was scarcely more than a skeleton in rags and starvation. She was the last of a family, the victims of Turkish massacres, and she had escaped only by seeking refuge in the mountains. Both legs were amputated above the knees and her life was saved.

Conditions rapidly got better in Khoy and vicinity, the contagious disease being practically stamped out, so Doctors Dickey and McClintic, and Nurse Miss Lee were transferred to a field hospital at Kazvin and later to Hammedan in Central Persia. Dr. Hazlett remained in charge at Khoy. Russian and American ladies are now nursing the sick and wounded side by side, the Russian and American surgeons in charge.

Over the roof the starry banner of Uncle Sam and the white, blue and red tricolor of the little White Father, are rippling side by side. And to show his appreciation of their work, the Grand Duke Nicholas has given the order for imperial decorations for each American doctor and nurse.

REUNION COMPLETE.

The Democratic leaders and press are striving valiantly to make it appear that there is dissension among Republicans and that the reunion of the Progressives with the parent organization is being attended with friction and discord.

As a matter of fact there probably never was seen anywhere a great and nationwide readjustment of political relations which has proceeded so smoothly as the amalgamation of the anti-Democratic elements which disintegrated four years ago and which now are together again in a compact, enthusiastic and soon-to-be victorious Republican party.

The fundamental reason, of course, is the realization of the fact that fully ninety per cent. of the Progressives of 1912 are and have been for many months ready to co-operate with the Republican party to put an end to Democratic rule in the nation —not alone to replace Mr. Wilson with a Republican, but to transform the Democratic majority in both branches of congress into a minority.
No discerning Progressive attempts to deny that his party has disappeared as an organized political force.

Ex-Senator Beveridge phrased it nicely the other day when he said it was useless to discuss causes—for there is the fact. Accordingly, the Progressive of 1912 has a simple object to make. He may return to his former allegiance to Republicanism and support Hughes. There is no effective middle ground this year, and the great bulk of the Progressives recognize it. The adherence of the leaders, through public interviews and through their acceptance of places of responsibility in the Republican campaign organization, is a recognizable truth about the Progressives are back home again.

The Democrats, of course, are reluctant to admit all this—and they find themselves especially troubled because they have thus far been unable to seduce any eminent Progressives of former Republican affiliation to unite with their organization.
The president himself has not hesi-tated to join in the hunt for the Bull Moose and his facile pen has been busy with missives to anyone who could claim even tenuous Progressiveism. The only Bull Moose pelis which thus far adorn the Democratic headquarters are those whose hair was originally Democratic in color.
The big herd is in the Republican corral.

POLITICAL JUMPING JACK.

"The Madison Journal" publishes on its first page an "open letter" to Governor Hughes attacking him for his recent speech accepting the presidential nomination. It asks him ten or twelve questions in order to break the force of Governor Hughes' criticism of President Wilson. The "open letter" is signed by thirty-eight men of more or less prominence in the literary world calling themselves the "Democratic National Editorial Committee" and one of the signatures is that of Richard Lloyd Jones, editor of The Madison Journal. It must be funny business to run a Republican newspaper supporting La Follette and Hughes while acting as an editorial writer supporting Wilson.

This is the way the Oshkosh Northwestern sums up the attitude of the Madison Journal. They might add that the Journal, calling itself a Republican newspaper, sent its editor to St. Louis to aid in the manufacture of the great Democratic national platform and that each week
this same editor has long distance calls from Washington, direct from the president it is whispered, as how to formulate Wisconsin political ideas
through the columns of his journal.

It is a wonderful circus act these so-called supporters of Hughes for President and La Follette for Senator, who turn "themselves" into the editor of St. Louis to aid in the manufacture of the great Democratic national platform and that each week
this same editor has long distance
calls from Washington, direct from the president it is whispered, as how
to formulate Wisconsin political ideas
through the columns of his journal.

However, politics make strange bed fellows, and it is safe to assume that the Jeffersonian, the Journalist, the and other papers of its ilk, will turn and earnestly advocate the election of the real Democratic Senatorial candidate, Wm. Wolfe, of La Crosse. If they did this now they would be more respected the state through and might have some influence.

WELCOME BACK.

Welcome back you citizens of yesterday. The residents of today give you a hearty greeting. They welcome you with open arms. As the saying goes "We hope you will be glad you kum, kum again." Meanwhile, while you are here, enjoy yourself. Talk over those good old days when this man or that man you met in his hey day.
When street cars were run by mules, when there were no street cars. Go back if you please to war days and the soldiers marching away. Discuss former Fourth and the original None Such Brothers parade. Think how sweet the apples from this or that orchard tasted. Remember the winter nights and the coasting, the old fashioned sleigh rides to Milton and the oyster stew at the end. Tell of the days when the big snow fell and Janesville was shut out from the world for days and the opera company stranded here gave extra shows to pay their hotel bill. Remember the night of the big wind or the days of the heavy rain. Go down in the Court House park and register and greet your old friends. Be as glad to see them as we all are to see you.
Some of the old landmarks are gone but many remain. Do not neglect to make yourself at home everywhere for this is "Home Coming" week and we want you to feel at home no matter where you roam. You may find that girl with the rosy cheeks you so admired is a grandmother now with a host of grandchildren, but never mind, talk over old days with her.
Think of the school days and perhaps you will find some of the old teachers still around. If you look carefully, listen to the bands, watch the free street parades. Hear the addresses of welcome and the talks by former residents and be happy you came and only wish such reunions came every year and you could come back among the old folks at home more often.

HOME INTERESTS.

Some people who feel they can't afford both, give up the home newspaper in order to take a paper published in some metropolitan center. The big metropolitan sheet covers more world-wide subjects, but it leaves one all out of touch with his vital home interests.

It does little good to know what President Wilson and Kaiser William are doing, provided you don't know what chances to reduce the cost of living are offered by the home stores, what kind of government the home politicians are giving, how the local schools are caring for your children, and what enterprises are being conducted by your home societies and churches.

Life is successful or unsuccessful,
according as one makes the best use of his own immediate surroundings.
Failure to read the home newspaper means failure to avail oneself of the business, educational and improvement opportunities within one's own reach. It does little good to learn that Smith won a fortune in Wall street, provided one thereby lets slip the opportunities of the home environment.

FOR PUBLIC GOOD.

It is pleasing news to know that the district attorney really means to abate the public nuisance that has existed so long in what might well be termed "No. 10" in South Janesville by bringing to trial all of the offenders on a serious complaint.
Almost immediately after the establishment of the railroad yards in that location, the issuing of liquor licenses to two bars there have caused both city and county authorities untold annoyance. No sooner would one condition be remedied than another would arise, even worse if anything.
Arrests might follow but convictions would fail or the case would be appealed until it lost its "punch". The Gazette believes these pest holes should be cleaned up as quickly as possible. It is amused at attacks by attorneys who seek to place a halo about the brows of their clients who are arrested on state charges, and continues to insist that the social ulcers, that have existed for so many years in South Janesville be cleaned up once and for all. The town of Rock is directly responsible for these conditions but if the town board will not remedy them the general public will demand it of the authorities. The district attorney back of him when he starts on this work and best wishes of success attend his efforts.

The high prices one has to pay at summer resorts may not be due so much to a disposition of the natives to make exactions, as to the large increment often required to persuade them to do some work.

It is expected that when the newspaper correspondents get out of reach of the censors, they may be able to describe a little more freely the luscious smell of some of the food
the boys on the border are getting.

There is a good deal of discussion as to when the guardsmen will get back from the border, and unfortunately in a good many cases it will be just a little time after some one has got away their jobs.

Considering the high state of political tension now apparent, the ly walk down town alone before next November 7.

The Audubon society is trying to preserve the turtle dove, but from what can be seen on shady piazzas at the summer resorts, there is no danger of their extinction.

While the president must necessarily spend most of his time in listening to applicants for office, he ought to have an hour or two in the evening

Some people's idea of getting along in the world is exchanging the deed of their house for a monthly gasoline and garage bill.

There is a deep conviction on the part of some of our patriots, that the Japanese lanterns are Jap spies.

The automobilists complain about glass thrown on highways. They are quite right. Even a motorist is a tributions mean that the newspapers

The Daily Novelette

OH, SPLASH.

A girl can't help her looks, but her looks can help her.—Prof. Simp.

The face of Rudolph Seiback suddenly grew white as a sheet. He couldn't swim a stroke, he could barely sink and the woman in the water below him had suddenly thrown up her hands and disappeared.

"Help! Help! Help!" yelled Setback. Though no swimmer, he was a perfect yeller, and a lone fisherman, plucking minnows, half a mile away on the bank, heard him and sauntered up.

"Did you advertise for help?" asked
the fisherman.

Rudolph Seiback's face was now
palely green.

"My wife!" he gasped. "She's sinking for the thirtieth and last time!
Twelve dollars to the man who saves her!"

"That's me!" cried the fisherman and plunged off the pier. A few minutes later he reemerged and presented him with the dripping form of the rescued woman.

"One dozen bones, please," requested
the fisherman.

Rudolph Seiback's face was now
ashen yellow.

"Er—er," he stammered, "when I healed for help—yelled for help—I thought it was my wife drowning.
It's my mother-in-law."

"Just my luck," grumbled the fisherman, thrusting his hand into his trouser pocket. "How much do I owe you?"

"That's all," said Rudolph. "I want to go home."

"I've often planned a gay career of life at Nauvassett Pier; I've thought that almost every year
I would bring it.

It seems that it would be a nice thing to do, but I have never had the time. But I have never had the price—Got going it.

This year I swore that I would go to Coney for a day, you know, and take a dollar bill or so.

And burn it.
But I can't do it that way;
There's nothin' doing but to stay and hustle for my weekly pay—Got darn it.

The thermometer.

The thermometer caused more suffering and unhappiness in hot weather than the heat itself.

Not one man in five goes and rubs
a thermometer every 20 minutes believes in it, but it has its psychological effect upon him just the same.

He will look at the thermometer and then he will turn away distressed and mutter: "I know it is a blamed sight hotter than that."

"It is 98," says the thermometer.
"You're a liar," says the man. "It is 11; and I know it."

But a few moments afterwards he is back staring at the thermometer.

An interesting experiment in thermometers may be had at a drug store where there are 40 or 50 of them arranged on a board for advertising purposes, thermometers that are for sale.

Says the druggist: "These thermometers are the best money can buy. They are absolutely correct."

You look at the board more closely and you will find that the first thermometer registers 98, and the next one 99, the next one 80. Possibly the fourth registers 78 and there may be two or three in the bunch that will register above the hundred mark. It is a safe bet that no two of them will register quite the same.

You naturally buy the thermometer that registers lowest. If you are going to order your ice by thermometer all summer, you want one that will keep you as cool as possible. You don't expect to believe in it very much when you buy it, but a thermometer has come to be a necessity in the home like a jar of goldfish or a patent mug wringer that won't work.

One of the best things to do with a thermometer in hot weather is to hit it with a brick, not peevishly, but firmly or else hang it down in the well or in the cellar where it will keep nice and cool. Or hang it in the ice box and go and look at it once in a while.

A Congressman's Life.

The life of a congressman is not all duck soup and lilies of the valley.
The people at home may think so, but the people at home are laboring under a delusion. The following was the time table of one of the congressmen along about the last of July:

7 a. m.—Breakfast.
7:15 to 9—Reading letters from constituents who wanted something for nothing.
9 to 10:30—Dictating diplomatic replies and regrets.
11:30 to 12—Conferences with 20 district political leaders, all of whom have made a journey to Washington to land one job for 20 different men.
12 to 12:02—Attends congress.
12:02 to 12:07—Luncheon in the house restaurant with said district leaders.
12:07 to 3—Showing folks from home about the capitol and trying to make engagements for them to see the president.
3 to 5:30—Listening to claims of 147 candidates for the postmaster-ships.
5:30 to 6—Trying to send all of the constituents away satisfied.
6 to 6:15—Dinner at home.
6:15 to 7:30—Arguing with man from home who wants to be consul at the Fiji Islands.

ILLINOIS YOUTH KILLED GIRL BY INJECTING AIR, STATE CHARGES

Elizabeth Radcliffe.

Roy Hinterliter, of Olney, Ill., is in jail charged with the murder of his sweetheart, Elizabeth Radcliffe. He admits he was with her when she died.
A medical examination proved that the girl came to her death by having air blown into her arteries through a hypodermic needle.

7:30 to 12:30—Listening to punk specimens at a unique.
1 a. m.—Lights out.

ANCIENTS DID GOOD WORK

Engineering Feat, It Is Said, Could Hardly Be Improved Upon In the Present Day.

Montezuma's well, a natural lake fed
by artesian flow at Camp Verde, Ariz., which has been offered for sale to the federal government, is one of the geological features of that neighborhood. Surrounded, as it is, by high natural walls, it seems from a distance to be a small mountain.
The outside of these walls is pierced in a prehistoric age by cliff dwellers.
The well is a great spring and has been used for irrigation purposes for many years. Its depth has never been absolutely ascertained, but is known to be in excess of 500 feet. The water is highly charged with lime, and moss removed from the inside walls and exposed to the air soon petrifies, the fibers being clearly discernible in the composition. That the well supplied the original, and now unknown, inhabitants of the valley with water for their fields and gardens is established by the tracing of a system of irrigation ditches, which, according to geologists, must have been constructed more than a thousand years ago.
The water they carried deposited lime along the entire system, and the formation, which may be seen now, is a solid mass of stone, resembling concrete of this day. The walls of the ditches, in places, measure more than three feet thick. The builders performed an engineering feat which could not be improved upon in this modern day.

Still Had Them.

What is known in a certain town as "A Shop Carnival" was being held,
and little girls represented the various shops. One, dressed in a white muslin frock gayly strung with gar-lands of bonbons, advertised the local candy store.

When the festival began she fairly glistered with attractive confectionery, but as time wore on her decorations grew less. Finally, at the end of the last act, not a bonbon was to be seen.

"Why, Dora," cried the stage manager, "where in the world are all your decorations? Have you lost them?"

"Oh, no," replied Dora; "they're perfectly safe. I'm wearing them inside."

Well Pitched.

"Sandy" Macleod and his donkey were well known in the country which gave them birth, and the two were on very friendly terms. "Sandy" would not have exchanged his "cuddy" for the best thoroughbred in the land.

Going out for a ride one day recently, he resolved to make his "moke" jump a stream. He applied the whip and the animal galloped to the edge of the bank, and then stopped so suddenly that "Sandy" was thrown to the other side of the water.

When he had sufficiently recovered from the shock he rose and looked the donkey in the face.

"Verra wool pitched," he said, "but boo are ye gainin' the get ower yersel'?"

Awaited Him.

When a member of the British parliament desires a book that is not in the library, he files his application for the volume, which the librarian reserves for him on its return, notifying him that the book awaits his pleasure.

Now it happened that one of the members applied for, but could not get at the time, a copy of a novel entitled
"The Girl He Left Behind Him." In course of time a postcard arrived from the library, and as the member's wife is of a suspicious nature that postcard caused trouble, for it read:

"Mr. T.—is informed that 'The Girl
He Left Behind Him' is now in the library, and will be kept for him till next Tuesday morning."

Wanted the Materials.
"Will you start up that fireless cooker, Norah?" said the lady of the house.
"Sure I will, mum," replied the green girl. "Where's the matches?"—Yonkers

As to Ideals.
People talk as if Ideal was a kind of magic salve, to heal any kind of hurt, individual or social. Put your ideal high enough, and live as you please, is the modern gospel. If your intentions are really good, do not worry about the ritual of daily living. A hundred magazine-pulpits are preaching the doctrine. High ideals are held to justify the breaking up of the home. High ideals are considered more important than fundamental loyalty—whether to an employer, a church, or the president of the United States. And since no one would admit for a moment that his ideals were anything but high, this system simplifies everything in life except the consequences. It is much easier to have a high ideal than to make it work. It is sometimes nobler to be true to the ugly job in front than to soar aloft—Walter Herbert Blake.

"DOS AND DON'TS" LISTED BY CHIEF FOR COMING WEEK

Champion Stipulates Column of Advice for Everybody to Take Record of.—Extra Precaution.

A list of "Do's and Don'ts" for Janesville people, out-of-town visitors, drivers of automobiles and pedestrians and pedestrians was issued by Chief of Police Peter D. Champion this morning. The advice is prompted by the expected congestion of the city during the week of the fair and the homecoming and because of the big crowds to be in the city, the latter always an attractive occasion for Mr. L. F. Gentry and his wife.

Here's what the chief warns:
Automobile drivers and others: Keep to right of road and respect speed laws. Don't attempt to pass other cars going to fast, or in fact on any street. Use right and left hand signals when turning corners. Use dimmers on all cars at night.
Janesville people and fair visitors: Cross streets at street intersections. Don't take short cuts. Keep moving in downtown section.

When at the fair grounds don't carry a long pocketbook. One sticking out from a man's hip or inside a coat pocket is likely prey for a pickpocket. Don't place your coat on your arm to carry it if you have a purse inside.

It will save you money if you carry only silver and small change. Paper money is hard to use in such conditions as will be experienced this week. Small change eliminates possibilities of short change. Big increase chances of misappropriation of money. To make a mark of you. Don't change a large bill for anybody unless you know them. Chances are the fellow may spend fifty-fifty with you with your money.

Don't take any chances. The slick boys have so many clever skin games that it's no hard matter to fool you and over the eyes of even the wisest of the wise. The sharks are on the alert all the time.

Report losses to the nearest police station. Don't delay. Time is most important in catching the fellow who has fleeced or robbed you.

Extra precautions have been taken by Chief Champion to protect the crowds. Officers have been detailed to the fair grounds and in addition the police auto patrol will be stationed at the fair grounds and in the main drive gate. This position will permit the driver in charge to answer immediately calls coming into the downtown station as telephone communication has been established between the secretary's office. The patrol will also answer accident calls.

Officers of regular patrol duty are to attend the fair in uniform and are to be vested with all authority of a policeman. In addition the fair board this morning had fifteen deputies sworn in. Efforts have been made to scour out all undesirable followers of such habits, both by the police and by the fair board.

POLICE COMMISSION ADVISES WAGE BOOST TO COPPERS-FIREMEN

Recommend Graduate Scale of Compensation Over Three-Year Period—Approve Appointments.

Members of the Janesville Police and Fire Commission at their meeting yesterday afternoon passed a resolution recommending that the city commission place the men of the fire and police department on a progressive wage scale based on length of service. Under the plan, providing the commissions see fit to accept the recommendation, a new man in either of the two departments will receive a wage of $65 per month for the first year with an increase of five dollars per month for the second and third years until in the third year he will be receiving a wage of $75 per month. This proposed change will not effect the compensation of the chiefs of either the fire or the police department.

The commission approved the appointments of George Champion, Milwaukee, and Charles Harmon as members of the police department, and also approved those of George A. Truesdale and Fred Jungblut to the fire department.

Mayor Pathe's regards with favor to the wage scale. He stated this morning that in all probability it would become effective November first this year and that he also planned to cover the proposed wage increase in the city budget to be made out this fall.

REPAIR PHONE CABLE BURNT BY LIGHTNING

Bell Company Has But Few Phones Out of Commission in Fourth Ward After Friday Night's Accident.

Wisconsin Telephone company service in the fourth ward in the southern end of the city, disrupted since Friday night when lightning, jumping to the heavy service cable from a trolley wire on Franklin street, burnt out a section close to four hundred feet in length, has been resumed in nearly all cases. Between three hundred and fifty and four hundred telephones were thrown out of service as the result of the cable burning. Only a few of these telephone subscribers are without service today. District Manager W. N. Cash of this city, dispatched a large crew of men to the scene of the trouble early Saturday morning and working in relays since that time the trouble has been speedily remedied. Burnt out connections in the remaining telephones were being repaired this afternoon. Expectations were that all would be in commission by night.

DIRECTORS MAP OUT PLAYGROUND PLANS

Tennis Tournament, Track and Field Meet, and a Hike Will Feature Program for Remaining Week.

During the remaining four weeks of the playground season the children will be kept busy at all times if the program of the directors is carried out. Besides the final contests in the golf and baseball leagues, there is the track and field meet, the tennis tournament, general hike for the four playgrounds, and in addition a short schedule of games in dodge ball, basketball and football for boys and girls under twelve years of age. Plans for the coming four weeks were discussed at a meeting of the supervisors last evening.

The exciting heat of last week caused the postponement of the first two volley ball games so that a double header will be played Wednesday. The Jefferson and Webster schools will clash at the Webster grounds at the Adams and the Washington at the Washington.

On Wednesday the Adams and the Webster baseball teams will meet at the Washington plot in one of the final games of the season. Friday the Washington and Jefferson will play the last game on the schedule, which will decide the winner of second place in the percentage column.

The track and field meet will extend over four days this year and will not be held at the fair grounds as in previous years. The boys have been divided into three groups and the girls into two. Each group will be taken on a different ground on a different day.

On August 17 the boys' group of twelve to fifteen years will have their meet at the Webster grounds. August 18 the under twelve boys will meet at the Adams. August 23 the fifteen to eighteen boys will run their events at the Jefferson.

The two girls' groups will have their contests at the Washington on the 23rd. Two days will be necessary to decide the winners in the tennis tournament which begins on the 24th. All the games in the singles and doubles will be played at the Jefferson school playground system.

The general hike for all the playground children in the city will be held August 29. An interesting time will be had by the children as the playground directors, in addition to the usual fun and games which are always held, a series of outdoor baseball games will be played between the four plots. As in previous years the hike will be to Crystal Springs Park, up the river.

SIMMONS MUST SERVE GREEN BACK SENTENCE

Young Man's Personal Record Does Not Warrant Pardon and Maxfield Refuses Application.

After the investigation of the personal record of Merton Simmons, sentenced yesterday to a term of eighteen months in the state reformatory for burglary, the court today refused to grant him a pardon.

REST ROOM OFFERS EVERY CONVENIENCE DURING FAIR WEEK

Crowds Attending Fair and Home Will Take Advantage of Comfort Station's Central Location.

That the rest room is filling a long felt want is demonstrated by a visit to its attractive quarters. Comfortable chairs and couches, a reading table well supplied with material, a writing desk and small tables and chairs for the eating of lunches comprise part of the convenient equipment. Out of town guests to the city are reminded of these conveniences and are urged to make use of them.

The matron is always in attendance from ten o'clock until six and from two to six on Sundays. She will make a cup of tea or coffee for a charge of five cents. Everything else is free.

Ladies are cordially invited to make these rooms their headquarters during fair week and leave their lunches and packages here. Located as it is next door to the Commercial club room, it is very convenient for the room for an extended wait, and they are very glad of visitors also.

The rest room is conveniently accessible from the suburban and from the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, where the cars leave for the fair grounds, and should prove a very great convenience during the coming week when the city is crowded with visitors.

The matron in charge has had experience in nursing which might prove valuable in emergency, and her services are available to any one needing them. You may have the baby warmed and put him to sleep in the little white crib while resting and enjoying a cup of tea yourself. You may have water for any of your desire and may eat your luncheon at the little tables.

It is hoped that everyone will feel free to use this room this week to its full capacity. The rest room is a free service and the business men will feel amply repaid for the time and money they have so freely give to it.

JANESVILLE FAIR IS OPENED TODAY

placing in the late entries. The display of Percherons and Clydesdales are strong and the competition will be keen in selecting the premium winners. George Hutton of Madison has a fine pair of horses.

The stables containing the horse judges are full and ten or fifteen extra stalls in tents have been constructed. Keepers and caretakers of the valuable horses are kept busy all the time rubbing down and tending to the animals. Three or four blacksmiths with equipment are on the grounds.

The poultry exhibits are surprising. William McVey, superintendent, assisted by A. H. Christenson, had a big task this morning when three carloads of poultry arrived at the grounds. The poultry more than expected were received in this department. The poultry hall, which is located near the grandstand, is one of the most complete and well equipped in the state.

The educational and farm products hall is located in the grandstand building. This place contains a grand display of "Made in Janesville" articles, school work, products of the Janesville school garden contest, and other interesting exhibits. The school department is much larger and better than in former years. The manual training classes of the high school and also the domestic science division has a large number of entries. The Rock County Fair Association has an unusual exhibit of its work in a tent to the rear of the grandstand.

The fair board went on their last booster run last evening. Two parties left for Beloit and the other to Hanover, Orfordville and Footville. The Beloit party were accompanied by the Beloit City band, Mrs. S. Daily and M. O. Monahan. Thousands of people turned out at Beloit and gave the boosters a hearty welcome. The other men met with a big success. The Beloit party, O. E. Humphrey, Oscar Hammarlund furnished the program. Fourteen runs were made by the fair men in the past ten days and all met with success. W. N. More of the fair board has had a hard time and he has been untiring in his efforts to boost the fair and home coming celebration.

The program tomorrow is expected to draw thousands of people from Watertown county as the Fort Atkinson and Whitewater baseball teams are scheduled to clash in the morning at the fair grounds. Both teams are loaded up with big league players and fans can expect to see a real game. "Red" Ormsby, the big man who pitched the Janesville Cardinals to the Rock County championship, will be on the slab for Whitewater. The Fort Atkinson will be run and accommodation have been arranged for the Whitewater people.

Begin Judging Wednesday. Judging of horses, beef cattle, swine, sheep, farm products, floral, school exhibits, fine arts and domestic, and culinary will start in the morning tomorrow. In the afternoon three races for $500, $400 and $300 purses will be run.

DELANVAN FARM FIRE STILL BURNS TODAY

La Bar Lake Lawn Blaze of Yesterday Still Unextinguished—Farm Hand Hurt in Fall From Horse.

DeLavan, Aug. 8.—The fire which started yesterday noon on the Lake Lawn farm, three miles east of here, was still burning this afternoon. Three buildings had been entirely consumed. A big gain in the total ruin of a brand new $700 milking machine was felt by the tenant on the farm which is owned by D. E. La Bar of this place.

Henry Coppner, a hired man on the farm this morning, was thrown from his horse and suffered a broken collar bone. Coppner was the man who on Friday night was run down by an automobile as he was driving in a rig on Geneva street. The injury was an entire wreck. The driver of the car proved to be an agent of the Curtis Publishing company and working for the Chicago office. Coppner had him arrested and the examination was to be held today. The farm hand's injury prevented him from going into court and the case has been adjourned.

HEAT CAUSES DEATH OF BIG HOG AT FAIR

Sire Belonging to A. L. Hyzer of West Salem, Worth $500, Expires.

Heat caused the death of a 600-pound hog, said to be worth $500, in the swine pen at the fair grounds today. The animal was one of the sires in the Du Roc Jersey drive belonging to A. L. Hyzer of West Salem, Mr. Hyzer said. The hog had been in the show pen for several days and was preliminary to further success in the show pen. The loss is a heavy one.

FIND JOY IN BEING ALONE

Experience Which is Nothing Short of Delight is Recommended by Lover of the Woods.

The art of being alone is worth cultivating. Unless you have really tried it, you have no idea how unusual and refreshing it is. City life, and even modern country life are not conducive to its practice. It is very different from being lonesome and quite another matter from being ill. It is found at its full flower only in the woods, and its best development requires some adjustment and practice. The first experience is apt to leave one somewhat baffled, if not frightened. We live so much with other men and with the evidences of their activity that we hardly know how much is ourselves and how much someone else. In the woods—and it need not be the remote wilderness—we can divest ourselves of all that is not really a part of us. We can learn how small—or perhaps how large—we are. We can soak up impressions with time to taste them and consider them. We can learn the true value of wind and clouds and sun and shade. If we feel like it, we can talk out loud to ourselves, and there will be no one to think us crazy. We can sing and no one will tell us we are off the tune. In short, we can be natural for once in our lives—free from the warping effect of what other people think. That is surely an experience worth while.—Outing.

Wrecked cars and masses of debris; collapsed buildings and ruins.

Those sections of New York and New Jersey near Black Tom island, New York harbor, got an idea of the meaning of war when eighty-five carloads of ammunition exploded on the island last Sunday morning. Many warehouses and other buildings were utterly wrecked, and the damage done is estimated at about $20,000,000.

SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS DECREASE

Janesville's total number of school children attending the public and parochial schools residing within the city limits numbers 2,799. This result was obtained when School Clerk S. C. Burnham, assisted by D. D. Manross, completed the 1916 school census. Three thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine is a decrease of twenty-five over last year. However, this report does not include the country students, who number nearly two hundred and are increasing every year.

There are three parochial schools in the city with an attendance of about four hundred students. The census report shows that the number of males and females are about evenly divided.

REPAIR AFTON ROAD; BUILD CEMENT BRIDGE

Street gangs are repairing the Afton road on the west side of the river and according to Commissioner Goodman this morning this highway is not in passable condition. An old bridge on the road is being replaced with a new concrete structure. It will be several days before conditions are such that it will be ready for continual use although at the present time it is not closed to traffic; but to eliminate trouble with heavy cars and wagons it was thought advisable to sound the warning as to conditions.

Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance." Gloria Stafford, daughter of Pierpont Stafford, millionaire banker, and sister of David Stafford, finds herself in love with Richard Freneau, after she thinks she has been rescued from a band of Seminole Indians in the Florida Everglades by him. In reality Doctor Royce saved Gloria, and is likewise in love with the fair haired daughter of the millionaire. When Pierpont tries to pay Freneau off with a check for a large sum, the young broker declares it is Gloria he wants.

Miss Billie Burke

To prevent the affair going farther, Pierpont bundles Gloria back to New York and later sends her to a fashionable boarding school. It being under stood that she is not to see or communicate with Freneau for five years, and if at the end of that time they still love one another, they may marry. Gloria spends her five years dreaming of Dick and enjoying a girl's pranks at college, but Freneau goes into partnership with Frank Mulry on the stock exchange and finds business a losing gamble. Lois Freeman has married David Stafford in the meanwhile, but flirts outrageously with Freneau. On the night Lois and Freneau are to meet at the opera for a quiet chat, Gloria returns from school, and her father celebrates by a visit to the opera. She is amazed, on coming face to face with Freneau, to find her idol has even failed to recognize her, having completely forgotten her.

Charles Cherry in "Passers By." The extra feature on the program of the Beverly theatre on Wednesday will be the new Equitable photodrama, "Passers By," in which the noted dramatic star, Charles Cherry, will make his first stellar appearance on the screen. This picture is the work of the well known author, C. Hadron Chambers, and is adapted from his novel and play of the same title.

Unshod Horses.

The Indians, who had no superiors as horsemen, never thought of shoeing their mounts in any way, and yet they were capable of performing remarkable journeys over the most difficult country. Even at the present day in Japan the modern horseshoe finds a strong competitor in the old-fashioned sandals made of straw, which are fastened to the horse's hoofs very much as they might be to a man's foot.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Bryant Washburn.

Bryant Washburn, who at twenty-five is one of the bright stars of the silent drama, came within one of being a curate. His uncle, Rev. Dwight L. Moody, and other members of his family urged him strongly to enter the ministry. But he swerved from the theological career because he believed himself better fitted for the stage than the pulpit and because he thought there was just as much chance for a man to be of use to the world in the theatrical profession.

"There isn't so much difference between the intent of the pulpit and the present-day motion picture screen," says Mr. Washburn. "In one the teaching is direct by word of mouth; in the other it is by showing the outcome of a life of evil by a particular example. I believe, that the impres-

FIVE FIRE CALLS WITHIN FOUR HOURS

Of All the Active People Yesterday Afternoon Local Firemen Can Claim Distinction.

Although nobody was able to notice a "Busy Day" sign on the fire stations yesterday afternoon, nevertheless that portion of the day was one of considerable exertion for the men. In a period of four hours five runs were made. None of the losses were large although all threatened more or less damage.

The first call came at 1:45. Garbage burning on the Will Finley property on South Franklin street, across from the Interurban hotel, threatened buildings. A lead of hose and a stream was necessary to extinguish the flames.

At 2:50 a grass fire at the southern end of Cherry street at Western avenue gave a long run. Brooms and hand pumps were used to stop this fire.

At 3:55 a call was received that there was a big fire on Goose Island. This was found to be near the upper ice house and was extinguished with brooms, hand pump and chemicals.

The apparatus was but back in the house when at 4:40 another alarm came over the wire from Williams street, between Glen and Fourth avenue. This too was a grass fire. The residence of Harry Claxton, on Williams street, an ice company foreman, was endangered for a while, but after the hand pumps were brought into play the danger passed.

The last call came at 5:40. This run was to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway switch tracks above the gas house. A grass fire had started and communicated to ties. A good headway had been made by the flames before the department arrived and ere they could be stopped had raced swiftly up the hill, north to St. Mary's avenue and east to the railroad company's storage yards and large freight house near the Hanson

FAY TINCHER TO STAR IN "THE DOPE FIEND."

"The Dope Fiend" is the title of the first feature in which Fay Tincer, the well known comedienne, is to star. In this picture Miss Tincer appears in the part of an artist's model who is a victim of drugs. It is a decidedly new characterization for this actress, but not wholly different from her former work, in that there are a number of comedy situations. Tully Marshall appears as the artist.

Miss Tincer has just been notified that she has won second place in a popularity contest by an Australian moving picture magazine. The first place was won by Mary Pickford. In view of the fact that Miss Tincer has been in pictures less than two years, this must be considered as a distinct honor.

SEE CHAPLIN AT WORK FROM A LOFTY PERCH

One of Los Angeles' most dignified citizens, a man whose monthly income is represented in four figures, was recently observed perched on top of a high board fence overlooking the ward surrounding Chaplin's studios. He admitted that in compliance with a rule established by Studio Manager Caulfield, he had been barred from the studio during working hours, but was so anxious to see Chaplin that he had climbed to the top of the fence. He had been there nearly two hours when he was spotted.

The piles were pulled apart by the firemen and drenched with a stream from a lead of hose to nine hundred feet of hose. It was close to eight o'clock before the apparatus was back in the barn.

Ingalls' Theory Wrong.

Some years ago Senator John James Ingalls of Kansas wrote a poem called "Opportunity." His theory was that Opportunity knocked at your door but once. His poem was one of the most beautiful in the English language, but his theory was all wrong. The persons who have the microbes of ambition and industry do not wait for Opportunity to knock at the door, but have the door wide open and are out on the sidewalk or in the street hunting for Opportunity, and it is not difficult to find it. Do not wait for Opportunity to knock if you wish for success.

Women Warriors.

It is commonly assumed that women lack the fighting instinct and have lacked it from the beginning. Certainly this is not true of the ancient Teutonic woman, the Urweib, who fought side by side with her bearded mate in incessant tribal wars. History tells us that the Roman armies had to defeat the women after they had defeated the men.

End for Doctor.

Mrs. Nixdoor—"How is old Mr. Moneybags this morning?" Mrs. Sharpeye—"I haven't heard; but I noticed that Doctor Bigfee looked very gloomy when he left the Moneybags residence a little while ago." Mrs. Nixdoor—"Ah, then the old gentleman is getting well."

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a daughter seventeen, very pretty. She insists on going out with boys, the moving picture shows, etc., but as I consider her much too young, I will not give my permission for this. However, I have found that she goes anyhow, after telling me she is merely going to a girl friend's house. What would you do if you were in my place?

MRS. G.

If you continue in your present course, I am afraid you will bring great unhappiness upon yourself. It is only natural for your daughter to want to have a good time and at her age to want to entertain her boy friends. If you do not permit her to entertain these friends at home, she may persist in meeting them elsewhere in spite of all that you can do. It is your duty to meet her friends, let her bring them to the house, then you can judge their fitness and also keep her from deceiving you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a very old skin. Will you please tell me what to do for it? WORRIED.

There is usually an inward cause for the condition such as indigestion. If no material effect is gained by the following treatment, it would be well to get your physician to give you treatment. Apply the following lotion:

Two grains of sulphate of zinc, eight drops of compound tincture of lavender and one ounce of distilled water.

Banish all rich and greasy foods. A strict diet has a great influence on the condition of the skin.

Washing of the face occasionally with diluted alcohol (5 per cent strength) is beneficial in the case of an oily skin. A few drops of ammonia or lemon juice in the water with which the face is washed is also helpful.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me how I can make myself entertaining. I make every effort I can to keep up an interesting conversation with a young man, but I do not succeed. It is very painful, and besides I do not make or keep many friends.

MYRTLE.

Desperate effort that you do not make is partly due to your lack of interest in the conversation of others, and as much to a lack of good conversationalist. If you would make a particular young man your friend, and learn what he wants to talk about, subjects and bring them up in conversation. Your knowledge of and interest in such matters will not fail to make a favorable impression. Keep informed as to current events, not only in your own city, but in the world at large, and you will never lack subjects for interesting conversation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years of age and I live at home, but work. I have a brother eighteen years of age and a sister sixteen years of age. My brother is a high school graduate and is working. He does not take anything seriously. He sleeps late in the morning and doesn't care when he gets to work. He has three jobs since the middle of June and has to work all after working a week or two. My mother doesn't seem to worry. Brother is absolutely spoiled and she thinks that he wants to sleep it is all right. Father thinks it is terrible but he can't do anything. What do you think ought to be done?

Your father ought to refuse to give your brother any money and insist upon his paying board if he lives at home. He should be very firm about this. He should be able to do it. It would be a great help to him if he could get out and shift for himself. Can't you and your father make your mother boy who is willing to be kind to her him useless and unfitted for making his own living. The man who cannot earn a living is the unhappiest man in the world.

"If she thinks we aren't good enough for her," we said, "we won't bother her."

I have since found out that the chief thing she desired in college was friendship, but that she had been brought up almost entirely among older people and did not know how to meet younger people on their own ground.

The resulting diffidence we took for pride and treated her accordingly. Those who suffer from diffidence and shyness have enough to contend with without any harsh judgments from others.

Household Hints

TO PRESERVE BERRIES WHOLE.
Buy the berries when not too ripe, pick over immediately and wash carefully in glass jars, filling each jar with water. Drain the berries, then pour a quart of sugar and one cupful of water for every two pounds of fruit and let it come slowly to a boil, pour the syrup into the jars, then set the jars in a pot of cold water on the stove and let the water boil and the fruit become scalding hot; now take the jars out and seal perfectly tight. If this process is followed thoroughly the fruit will keep for years.

CANNED PEARS.
Steam pears in a colander till tender. Have ready a syrup to which you have added two or three cloves. Cook the pears in the syrup until clear. When about half done slice in a lemon to each quart of pears and finish cooking. Seal in glasses.

PUMPKIN PRESERVES.
Make a rich syrup. Peel and slice pumpkin in chips about 1/4 inches long and one-fourth inch thick. Cook in the syrup until clear. When about half done slice in a lemon to each quart of pumpkin and finish cooking. Seal in glasses.

THE TABLE.
Veal Fricassee.—Small pieces of veal put in skillet with heaping tablespoonful of butter or fat. Cook slowly with cover on. When slightly brown and tender remove from pan. Add to the gravy one-half cup butter or fat, beat hot, then stir in one-fourth cup flour, stir until smooth. Put in the veal and two cups water. Simmer one hour, stirring to keep from burning. Season with salt, pepper, one small onion chopped fine. Must be browned.

Good Bean Dish.—When cooking ham wash ham especially well and save the water that you cooked it in. Boil lima or navy beans as usual and drain off water. Add the ham water and bake well.

Peas and Carrots.—When one becomes tired of peas cooked alone, try a quart of peas and about four good sized carrots. Cook until done and serve either with butter, salt and pepper or a white sauce made of one tablespoonful butter, one teaspoonful flour, salt and pepper. The carrots have to be cooked for a long time without destroying taste of same and the dish is truly delicious.

Raspberry Pudding.—Into a baking dish place raspberries, sweetened to taste, two-thirds full. Make a light short biscuit dough, roll rather thin and put on top. Bake one-half hour. This pudding is delicious and there is no lower crust. Cherries and raspberries mixed are also fine. A delightful way to serve red raspberries is to place a spoonful of them in the center of sauce dish, then fill with hot sauce.

Peach Cobbler.—Take new peaches (canned will do). Make a light biscuit dough. First put the peaches in a baking pan (no dough in bottom of pan). Season with salt and sugar to taste (be sure to have in some of the juice of the peaches), then roll out biscuit dough rather thin and cover the peaches. (Biscuit dough of sweet milk.) Bake in moderate oven about one-half hour. Serve either cream or the juice of the fruit.

Mock Lobster Salad.—One and a half pounds halibut steak, one teaspoon salt, small piece of onion, small pieces bay leaf, four tablespoons mayonnaise, one tablespoon chopped capers or a few stuffed olives. Wash and put halibut into pan, cover with boiling water, add salt, onion, bay leaf, boil twenty minutes. Remove from water with skimmer; set aside until cold. Remove all skin and bone, flake into small pieces, put in strainer and drain in cold place until ready to use. Line table with chopped capers or stuffed olives which have been cut in rings.

Halibut Buns. (24 buns).—When bread is light and fluffy, add to it, leaves, take a piece of the dough (enough for a good sized loaf of bread), put into mixing bowl, add one-half cup sugar and one-half cup butter or lard. Knead thoroughly, flour to prevent sticking, for twenty minutes, then set in a warm place. Let rise till very light, then bake in quick oven ten or fifteen minutes. Brush with butter.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
If spots on drainboard or sink will not come off with just one application of any cleanser, trying soaping the rag thoroughly, covering drainboard lightly with any cleanser, then cleaning with both soap and cleanser.

When You Have to Use Oil Lamps.—Sometimes the collar loosens. Clean all oil from the brass and top of lamp. Get a lamp of alum size of small walnut and melt in small dish. Put all inside brass ring that it will hold, set back on the lamp evenly, and when hardened will not pull off. Oil does not soften the alum.

POPULARITY—WHY WE SHOULD CRAVE IT!
Why should we crave this thing which call popularity? Of course it is very pleasant to know we are well liked and that our friends are many—but isn't there something more than that? I think so!

Whenever I think about the matter, the good which a person is able to do seems to be the greatest factor which popularity possesses.

My thoughts fly back to the high school days when Ethel was elected the most popular girl in the school. No matter where she went, Ethel was liked and her friends were many. Her popularity was complete and she was the center of the crowd. Yet, although we were the closest chums, I never saw her least bit conceited.

To this day, although she is now married, the girls all keep her friendship.

The secret of her popularity was her naturalness. She was neither lively nor quiet. When she was in the incident took place, Ethel was the first to laugh; when someone was in trouble, Ethel was the first to lend her aid.

The greatest value, however, which Ethel found in all the popularity which she possessed was the good influence

AFTER TREATMENT OF PARALYSIS.
Paralysis of one leg is four times as frequent as paralysis of both legs, after an attack of acute poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis. The most common condition is paralysis of the foot-drops, or "flat foot," which is per extremity the deltoid, which lifts the arm straight out from the body, is most frequently paralyzed.

Systematic massage, administered by one trained in the art or under instructions of one so trained, is a valuable aid in maintaining nutrition and preventing contractures of the muscles. It should be begun as soon as the acute stage of the disease has passed, say, the end of the first month. It must always be gentle. Soon after the massage is commenced the child should be encouraged in every way to make slight voluntary efforts with the paralyzed muscles. Even if no visible movement is thus produced, if the child is encouraged to make slight voluntary efforts, good is bound to come of the effort.

BREAD COST TO RISE
MATER BAKERS THINK

Modern Advance and Social Conditions Given as Reason Why Loaves Are to Cost More Eventually.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 8.—"Housewives are going to have to pay for bread in the near future. So declared Jay Burns, president of the National Association of Master Bakers, in his annual address delivered before their convention here today.

Industrial preparedness, first for individual efficiency, and second, for industrial efficiency, were advocated by Mr. Burns, who made this last include organized co-operation in scientific knowledge of methods and processes.

That the value of bakery products in the United States jumped from $175,000,000 in 1900 to $600,000,000 in 1915, and that the cost of bakery products had increased 81 per cent in that period; that the value of their products 127 per cent; capital invested 160 per cent, while the population served increased only 20 per cent, were some of the things pointed out by the speaker, who predicted the annual baking output of the United States would approximate $81,000,000,000.

"The baker has too long been the football of unscrupulous and ignorant politicians and the stalking horse for the food faddists," said Mr. Burns in asking for co-operation. "We need to co-operate for betterment and improvement in the quality of product."

In explaining the reasons for the high cost of bread, Mr. Burns said: "While it is true that much of the machinery now used has reduced materially the amount of hand labor employed, it is equally true that upkeep and depreciation on machinery, shorter hours, higher wages, better facilities, which bakers have adopted, have absorbed nearly or quite all of the savings, so that the most exclusive of material, of producing 1,000 loaves of bread, notwithstanding a new new machinery, is much greater today than it was 10 or 20 years ago."

He gave statistics, showing the various increases in the raw materials used in producing bread, since 1914 and said that during all this time there has been an advance in the price of bread to the consumer of from 15 to 25 per cent. He advised his hearers not to be afraid to face the rise, and lose customers, because he said the cost of producing home bread was much greater than that of commercial made bread.

"We need to cultivate the friendliness of the press," he said in conclusion, "and we need his powerful, nationwide influence to aid in the solution of many of our problems. The industry would maintain a publicity bureau, fully equipped to handle publicity for the industry, and inform the public what the bakers are doing to better conditions of labor, to improve the surroundings for labor, to shorten hours, to increase the hours of daylight service and decrease the hours of night service, and take the public into our confidence regarding the cost of producing a loaf of bread."

graded exercise or voluntary efforts from the first. Gentleness is always essential.

What recovery is to occur will be gained in the first year. Only in exceptional cases does such improvement follow after a year or more.

Manipulation, massage, rubbings, adjustments or applications of remedies by unskilled persons should be carefully avoided, since ill advised efforts may produce serious injury and aggravate the paralysis.

Operations nowadays accomplish great things for the residual paralysis a year or more after the attack. Tendon transplantation may restore functions wholly or partly lost and give the patient a fairly useful limb in place of a deformity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Shall the Appendix Be Removed?
Question:—A doctor examined me and said I had an appendix. He said it might be best to have an operation now; then, too, he thought that maybe it would clear up in time about removing the appendix. Most patients recover from one attack of appendicitis. Is it safe to let it go? Sometimes I have a funny sensation in my right side.

Answer:—If it were my appendix and I had no more trouble than you mention, I should worry and wait. If trouble recurred, I should then begin to think maybe the doctor was right about removing the appendix. Most patients recover from one attack of appendicitis. Is it safe to let it go? Sometimes I have a funny sensation in my right side.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Denver, Colo., August 8.—"The Democratic state assembly met here today to nominate presidential electors and a state ticket. Julius C. By obtaining a ten per cent vote in today's assembly candidates are "designated" for places on the ballot at the state primary Sept. 12, when the real fight is staged. The various parties will be finally voted on in the general election of Nov. 7.

Delegates for today's assembly were elected July 29 in the county assemblies. Mass primaries July 22 elected the delegates to the county conventions.

Candidates for congress are to be nominated in the congressional assembly which will meet immediately following adjournment of the state convention.

Mrs. Gordon Decides It's Best to Be Away When Ethel Returns.

"Ethel, I do not want to be here when that little girl comes home. This will be a critical time in your lives. If everything goes right, you probably there will be no further trouble and your marriage will be a success. His mother was waiting thoughtfully at the fire.

"I surely don't want you to go back without seeing me and getting acquainted with Ethel," replied Mrs. Gordon. "There was silence for a space, then the mother replied: 'believe me, I will go to the southern part of the state and visit your Uncle Frank. He has been a long time since I saw him.'"

Ethel has been here long enough to make acquaintance with her. She will not be disturbed by company when I think as you do that she will be more likely to succeed if she has no one to make her nervous. What a plucky thing to do." Ralph's face glowed with pride.

"You mean her taking lessons of Mrs. Morton?" asked the mother. "Yes, and keeping the thing a secret so I would be surprised. You see she is still a child."

"Ralph, if you are expecting great changes in Ethel you will be disappointed. Character is not built in a day. Mrs. Gordon, at her son with a troubled expression on her face.

"If you knew Ethel you would realize that an attempt to learn to cook meant a radical change of front, and the fact that she does not return to me to prove that she is really trying to fit herself for a homemaker." Ralph paced up and down with his hands in his pockets. "I sincerely hope that you are right in your conclusions, and that you will not be disappointed." She gazed long after the fine manly fellow.

"You have made me see my own shortcomings, so I hope I can give a real help to the little girl. I wish she would hurry up and come home." The mother smiled at his impatience.

"She may come home any time now so I will take myself off to Frank's and you keep me informed about things. You can readily believe I shall be very anxious as to the outcome. Good-night, dear boy, I must go to bed now."

Left alone Ralph smoked in the freight till far into the night, build-astreness of which his little wife and the capable as well as beautiful little mistress.

"So you are not going to wait to see your son's wife?" Mrs. Gordon had come over to bid Nell good-by.

"I shall come back this way on my journey home. I have not seen my brother for several years and I can not prolong my stay indefinitely. I told Ralph not to hurry her return on my account, for if she is really using her time to good advantage, and her last letter indicates it, I do not want her hurried."

Mrs. Gordon smiled into Nell's face. "I always felt that Mother Morton could get her interested in her home if anyone could. Nell grasped Mrs. Gordon's hand in farewell.

SHYNESS AFTER ALL

What a painful thing shyness is!

And how many tricks of manner that the casual observer would take for manifestations of disagreeable qualities, such as forwardness or ungraciousness or pride or an unamiable disposition, are nothing at all but signs of shyness.

We naturally associate shyness and diffidence with a retiring manner and few words.

Yet the worst sufferer from diffidence I ever knew is a noisy and incessant talker.

You would think she was forward and pushing.

She talks about herself, she reveals things that she ought to keep secret, she makes inept remarks, she pitches her voice too high, she contradicts people, she laughs too much.

Naturally she has a reputation for being forward and pushing. As a matter of fact, she is so diffident that she cannot control and handle herself, this apparent forwardness is nothing at all but nervousness resulting from that diffidence. Afterward, she often suffers agonies of regret for her own awkwardness and seeming presumption and cries half the night over some inept thing she has said.

In the preface to Fanny Burnes's diary there is an interesting passage, bearing on this point.

Some Manifestations of Shyness. "Naturally," she says, "I am in the family. Dr. Burnes's polished manners concealed it; Fanny suffered from it through life; it has made her cousin Edward less known as a painter than he well deserved to be; and the two apparent exceptions—Fanny's sister Charlotte and her cousin Richard—may have been, one, somewhat flippant, the other, a comely by design, out of a well-known turn (taken by excessive diffidence)."

Pride is another quality for which shyness is often taken.

There was a girl in college whom we all shunned because she was so proud.

ECZEMA WOULD ITCH AND BURN

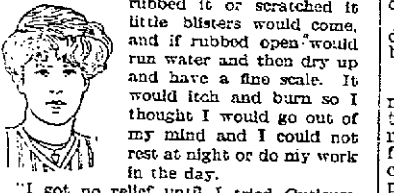

On Chest and Back. Scratched and Little Blisters Would Come. Could Not Rest at Night.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema on my chest and back for about a year. The first appearance was a scaly rash and it would itch and when I rubbed it or scratched it, little blisters would come and if rubbed open would run water and then dry up and have a fine scale. It would itch and burn so I thought I would go out of my mind and I could not rest at night or do my work in the day.

"I got so restless I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed the affected parts with Cuticura Soap and then gently rubbed on the Ointment, and in two weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Ella M. Yates, Coleman, Mich., July 14, 1915.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But Then There Are Other Meals Coming

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Auction Block

By REX BEACH

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

"Why don't you ask Miss Demorest?" She came with you.

Wharton sighed hopelessly. "Something queer about that Jane. You know what made us late? She went to mass on the way down."

"Mass? At what hour?"

"It was a special midnight service conducted for actors. I sat in the taxi and waited. It did me a lot of good."

Some time later Merkle returned to find Bob still autistically talking; catching Lorelei's eye, he signified a desire to speak with her, but she found it difficult to escape from the intoxicated young man at her side. At last, however, she succeeded, and joined her supper companion at the farther edge of the fountain, where the tireless cupids still poured water from the cornucopias.

Merkle was watching his friend's son with a frown.

"You have just left the personification of everything I detest," he volunteered. "You heard what his father said about raising him—how he taught Bob to drink when he drank and follow in his footsteps. But that isn't what I want to say to you. Help me feed these foolish goldfish while I talk."

"Do you think anybody would understand if they overheard you? I fancied you and I were the only sober ones left."

"Some of the girls are all right," Merkle eyed his companion closely. "Don't you drink?"

"I have nothing but my looks. Wouldn't I be a fool to sacrifice them?"

"You seem to be sensible, Miss Knight. Something tells me you're very much the right sort. I know you're trying to get ahead, and—I can help you if you'll help me. I need an agent, and I'll pay a good price to the right person."

"How mysterious!"

"I'll be plain. That affair yonder"—he nodded toward Jarvis Hammon and Lila Lynn—"strikes you as a well as a flirtation. It is something very different, for he is earnest. He thinks he is injuring no one but himself with this business, and he is willing to pay the price; but the fact is he is putting other people in peril—me among the rest. Nobody outside of a man's family has the right to question his private life so long as it is private in its consequences. But when his secret conduct affects his business affairs, when it endangers vast interests in which others are concerned, then his associates are entitled to take a hand. Do I make myself clear?"

"Perfectly. But you don't want me; you want a detective."

"My dear child, we have them by the score. We hire them by the year, and they have told us all they can. We need inside information."

The girl's answer was made with her habitual self-possession.

"I've heard about such things. I've heard about men prying into each other's private affairs, pretending to be friends when they were enemies, and using scandal for business ends. Lila Lynn is my friend—at least in a way—and Mr. Hammon is my host, just as he is yours. Oh, I know; this isn't a conventional party, and I'm not here as a conventional guest—inside the little coin purse he gave me is a hundred-dollar bill—but, just the same, I don't care to act as your spy."

Merkle's grave attention arrested Lorelei's burst of indignation.

"Will you believe me," he asked, "when I tell you that Jarvis Hammon and Lila Lynn are the two best friends I have in the world? This is more than a business matter, Miss Knight."

"I can hardly believe that."

"It's true, however; I mean to serve Hammon. At the same time I must serve myself and those who trust me. I fear—in fact, I'm sure—that he is being used. I've learned things about Miss Lynn that you may not know. What you have told me tonight adds to my anxiety, and I must know more."

"What, for instance?"

"Her real feeling for him—her intentions—her relations with a man named Melcher."

"Maxey Melcher?"

"The same. Do you know his business?"

"No."

"He is a gambler, a political power; a crafty, unscrupulous fellow who represents—big people. By helping me you can serve many innocent persons, and, most of all, perhaps, Hammon himself."

Lorelei was silent for a moment. "This is very unusual," she said at length. "I don't know whether to believe you or not."

"Suppose, then, you let the matter rest and keep your eyes open. When you convince yourself who means best to Jarvis—Miss Lynn and Melcher and their crowd, or I and mine—make your decision. You may name your own price."

"There wouldn't be any price," she told him, impatiently. "I'll wait."

Merkle bowed. "I can trust your discretion. Thank you for listening to me, and thank you for being agreeable to an intransigent old dyspeptic. Will you permit me to drive you home when you're ready?"

"I'm ready now."

But as Lorelei made her way unobtrusively toward the cloakroom she encountered Robert Wharton, who barred her path.

"Fairy Princess, you ran away," he declared accusingly.

"I'm leaving." She saw that his intoxication had reached a more advanced stage. His cheeks were flushed; his eyes were wild and unsteady.

"Good news! The night is young; we'll watch it grow up."

"Thank you, no. I'm going home."

"A common mistake. Others have tried and failed. With extreme gravity he focused his gaze upon her, saying, 'Home is the one place that our mayor can't close.'

She extended her hand. "Good night."

"I don't understand. Speak English."

"Good night."

Wharton's countenance darkened unpleasantly, and his voice was rough. "Where'd you learn that line? It's country stuff. We'll leave when I'm ready. Now we'll have a trot."

The music was playing; other couples were dancing, and he seized her in his arms, whirling her away. In and out among the chairs he piloted a dizzy course, while she yielded reluctantly, conscious, meanwhile, that Adore Demorest was watching them with interest.

For an interval Wharton said nothing; then, with a change of tone, he murmured in her ear: "Do you think I'd let you spoil the whole night? Can't you see I'm crazy about you?"

Lorelei endeavored to free herself from his embrace, but he clutched her tighter and laughed insolently.

"Nothing like a good 'turkey' to get acquainted, is there? We're going to dance till we're old folks."

She continued to struggle; they were out of step and out of time, but he held her away from himself easily, bending a hot glance upon her upturned face. She saw that he was panting and doubly drunk with her nearness. "Don't fight. I've got you."

She was smiling faintly, out of habit, but mistaking her expression, he drew her close once more, then buried his face in her neck and kissed her just at the turn of her bare shoulder.

Then she tore herself away, and his triumphant laugh was cut short as she slapped him resoundingly, her stinging fingers leaving their imprint on his cheek.

Her eyes were flaming and her lips were white with fury, though she continued to smile.

"Here! What'd you mean by that?" he cried.

She silenced him sharply. "Hush! Remember you broke in here. I'd like to see you in that fountain."

There was a swish of garments, a musical laugh, and Adore Demorest was between them.

"I'm madly jealous, Senor Roberto," she exclaimed. "Come, you must dance once more with me. We'll finish this. What?" She swayed toward him in sympathy with the music, nipping her fingers and humming the words of the song.

"She—wallowed me—like a sailor," the young man stammered, incoherently. "She—wants to see me in the fountain."

"Then jump in like a gentleman," laughed the danseuse. "But dance with me first." She entwined her arms about him and forced him into motion. As she danced away she signaled over her shoulder to Lorelei, who made haste to seek the cloakroom.

When she emerged John Merkle was waiting in the hall. A shout of laughter echoed from the banquet hall, and she started.

"That's nothing," Merkle told her. "Bob Wharton is in the fountain. He says he's a goldfish."

CHAPTER V.

No matter how chaotic the general

household schedule, Lorelei was always assured of ten hours' sleep, a dainty breakfast upon rising, and a substantial meal before theater time. Her mother saw to it that this program was religiously adhered to. Irrespective, also, of her careless disregard of social appointments, she was never permitted to miss one with the hairdresser.

Parker.

"What'd you mean by that?" He cried.

the manœuvre, the massage, or the dozen and one other beauty specialists who form as important an adjunct to the stage woman's career as to that of the woman of fashion. All this was a vital part of that plan to which the mother had devoted herself. No race-horse on the eve of a Derby was groomed more carefully than this budding woman. In preparing her for masculine conquest the entire family took a hand. Her prospects, her actions, her triumphs, were the main topic of conversation; all other interests were subordinated to the matrimonial quest, upon which she had embarked, and the three conspirators lived in a constant state of eager expectation over Lorelei's fortunes.

Mother and daughter were loitering over a midday breakfast, and Lorelei, according to custom, was recounting the incidents of the previous evening.

"It's too bad you quarreled with Mr. Wharton," Mrs. Knight commented, when she heard the full story of Hammon's party. "He'll dislike you now."

The girl shrugged dubiously. "He was drunk and fresh. I can't bear a man in such a condition."

"You shouldn't antagonize a man like him, my dear. He's single, at least; and naturally he's impulsive, like all those young millionaires."

"Bob is an alcoholic. He's no good, so Mr. Merkle said."

Jim, who was immersed in the morning paper, spoke from his chair near the window.

"Why don't you go after Merkle himself, sis? Easy picking, these bankers."

Jim also had come home in the still hours of the night before and was now resting preparatory to his daily battle with the world. Just how the struggle went or where it was waged the others knew not at all.

His mother shook her head. "Those old men are all alike. Mr. Hammon will never marry Lila."

"Is that so?" James abandoned his reading. "The older they are, the satter they get. Take it from me, on the word of a volunteer fireman, Lila will cash in on him quicker than you think. I know."

"How do you know?" inquired his sister.

"Maybe I got the dogeared dope," mocked the brother. "Maybe Max Melcher told me. Anyhow, you could land Merkle just as easy if you'd declare Max in."

"Now, Jim," protested Mrs. Knight. "I won't let you put such ideas into her head. You and that gang of yours are full of tricks, but Lorelei's decent, and she's going to stay decent. You'd get everybody in jail or in the newspapers."

"Has Maxey ever been in jail? Has Tony the Barber? No, you bet they haven't, and they never will be. This jail talk is funny. Just wait and see how easy Lila gets hers. Of course, if Lorelei could marry Wharton, that would be different, but he's no sucker."

"How is Lila going to get hers?" insisted Lorelei.

"Wait and see." James returned to his paper.

"She'll never marry him. She hates him."

Jim laughed, and his sister broke out irritably.

"Why be so mysterious? Anybody would think you'd robbed a bank."

Jim looked up again, and this time with a scowl. "Well, every time I come through with a suggestion I crabs it. What's the use of talking to a pair of haymakers like you, anyhow? I could grab a lot of coin for us if you'd let me. Why, Maxey has been after me a dozen times about you, but I knew you wouldn't stand for it."

"Blackmail, eh?"

Jim was highly disgusted. "What's the difference how you pronounce it? It spells k-a-l-e, and it takes a good-looking girl to pull off a deal in this town. All right—play for Bob Wharton. I'd like to meet him, though; he can do me a lot of good."

"How?"

"Well, he dropped eight-four hundred in Hebling's Sixth avenue joint the other night. Maxey owns a place on Forty-sixth street where the sky is the limit."

His sister was staring at him curiously. She had voiced misgivings concerning his activities of late, but Jim had never satisfied her inquiries. Now she asked, "What is your share?"

The young man laughed a little uncomfortably. "Forty per cent. That's usual. If he's going to gamble somewhere I might as well be in on it."

The girl's next words, however, left no doubt as to her feelings.

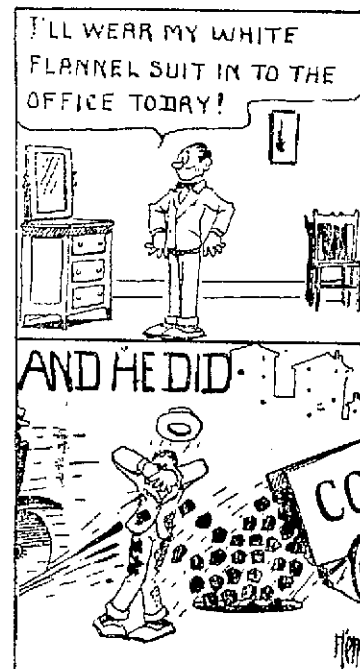

"You're a fine specimen, aren't you?" Her lip curled; mother and son started at the bitterness of the tone. "Ugh! What a mess you've made of things. Two years ago we were decent, and now—"

Lorelei's voice broke; her eyes filled over with tears. "I'd give anything in the world if we were all back in Vale. It took only two years of the city to spoil us."

"Ha! Better try Vale again. You'd end in a straightjacket if you did. You think you could go back, but you couldn't—nobody can after they've had a taste of the city."

"It's all wrong. The whole thing is—rotten. Sometimes I hate myself," Lorelei choked.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

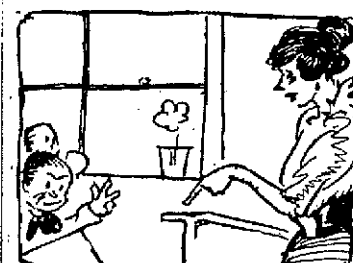

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulished coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine, silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulished coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

"Neutral."

A certain family in an eastern city includes several children, but only one—the eldest—is a boy. The little lad longed for a brother. Recently the house was rather upset. A nurse who had appeared on the scene came to the little boy.

"What do you think you've got?" she asked him.

"A baby brother," fairly gasped the youngster.

"No, dearie, it's a baby sister," replied the nurse.

"Aw!" groaned the youngster, "am I going always to have to sift those ashes?"

Once there was a lazy servant who wished she was rich.

So a fairy appeared and gave her a lamp.

"Rub that lamp," exclaimed the fairy, "and you can have what you want."

But the lazy servant was not impressed.

"It's just a scheme to get the brass-work polished," she yawned. And so her fortunes remained as they were.

Indoor Life Makes Fat

TRY OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OR TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FATS.

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against stoutness, as fat acquired by indoor life is unhealthy and a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air is said to weaken the oxygen carrying power of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any persons who are satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout are advised to go to Smith Drug Co., or any good druggist and get a box of oil of korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few days treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, improved digestion and a return of the old energy; foot-steps become lighter and the skin less flabby in appearance as superfluous fat disappears.

Oil of korein is inexpensive, cannot injure and helps the digestion. Any person who wants to reduce 15 or 20 pounds is advised to give this treatment a trial.

SEND OUT BONUSES TO RURAL TEACHERS

Nearly $70,000 Distributed to Teachers Throughout State in Recognition of Continuous Service.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—Under direction of State Superintendent C. P. Cary the rural teachers of the state who have taught more than one year in the same district are being sent their salary bonuses. A law passed by the last legislature gives rural school teachers who have taught continuously a bonus of from $2 to $8 a month, depending upon the length of time they have spent in the same district. Superintendent Cary said today that the aid would go to 2,540 teachers in the state. The checks are mailed direct to the county superintendent who sends them to the teachers. The total amount of money thus distributed is $69,963.38.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

BASEBALL AND WAR
You plan for a week and finally slip off and make it to a ball game, congratulating yourself that you are a captain of industry to have your destiny so well in hand as to have your own time when you wish it, and you and ten thousand other people there, too. "Night watches," you think. The greatest wonder about a ball game is, how do so many people get away in the daytime?
Well, there is only one conclusion, and that is that strategy, after all, is not dead among us. There is a great National hope in baseball. When everyone is talking unpreparedness, let us not forget that for years and years we have, as a nation, been cultivating a sick mind, endeavoring to get off to ball games in the afternoon. From office boys up to general managers we have been inventing dead grandmothers and other pretexts. This accumulated mental acuteness would not be lost in a war, or in a threatened war. After all, it is better to have brains than powder to blow out other people's brains. If we ever lick another nation, we shall have to lick it with our Americanism, probably with our baseball sort of Americanism, rather than with an adopted mode of warfare, foreign to our nature. It is probably a very important part of our preparedness that we don't much want to fight. That may make us pretty fierce if we ever get sufficiently irritated, fiercer than great rows of cannons. Even a cannon must be shot with spirit. Maybe the mechanism of a nation's preparedness would do as much as anything to defeat it. But we must not wax highbrow.
And at ball games we have had a little practice with hand grenades, the same being pop bottles. We have hoisted our own hymns of hate at unfair umpires. We have trained our stomachs to a ration of peanuts and ice-cream cones, and could live on either for months at a time. And there has been almost military precision about the way we have learned to rise as a man and stretch in the seventh.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Along with a good many other things the Gazette is always advocating the best interests of our beautiful city and the welfare of its citizens is the late agitation for "public rest rooms," and also for a public park, and play ground that is worthy of the name. Being one who has lived here sixty years and seen the city grow from a country village with fences around the homes and wooden awnings and hitching posts in front of the stores, with its accompanying muddy streets, to its present up-to-date appliances such as promenade walks, gas and electric lights, modern plate glass store fronts and five story buildings, not forgetting to mention also its many well located apartment buildings and its several fine bridges across our beautiful river. I may be pardoned if I express my views regarding the two public conveniences we now ought to have, the rest rooms and the park. First as to the former, the logical location seems to me to be the Conr. Exchange square (so called) for the west side and the public library for the east side. My idea would be to cover the triangular piece of ground at Milwaukee street and Franklin streets with a tastefully designed story brick, with terra cotta trimming, with openings leading out of the second story rooms onto a balcony around the square, for promenade walks and wide and commodious enough for a promenade walk, band stand. A men's entrance should be on the north side into a sub-basement while the ladies should enter the building from the Milwaukee street side or front into the room over the basement.

Can you suggest anything more useful or tasteful for this corner? Then location than the one I have suggested for the rest room, with a portion of the building and perhaps the added porch sufficient to accommodate the requirements of a band concert.

You ask who is going to pay for all this? I think the many wealthy women our city is known to have would be very glad to contribute the necessary funds. I provided the city council provided a certain sum annually for its maintenance.

Now for that new public park. The most natural and logical spot again is waiting the land of the landscape engineer or designer and that is the surrounding property with all its surrounding grounds. I saw for the first time, I am told, can be purchased for a sum around $25,000.

There would be required in addition to these grounds, the ground north and west of the main building, I believe to Mr. Malcolm Jeffries, our next to be U. S. Senator. I have no brief for saying so, but it is my own private opinion that being the public spirited man he has been known to be, as a citizen born in the berg, he would hail with delight the opportunity of contributing a beautiful park and known as a done suggest as Jeffries park with thereon the buildings and natural water course, adjacent to this property.

A fine cruise for boating and canoeing could be had from the upper dam to the lower, to say nothing of the beautiful lakes that could be artistically planned. Its safe bathing beaches, having a variety of water sports, as well as tennis courts and children's play grounds. Combine all these summer joys with that other one of ice skating and other winter sports and you have the dream complete.

I will take a little time to say that as our city has progressed thus growing more modern and beautiful yearly I am now taking on a park system, especially as nature has done so much for its starting. My idea would be for the city to issue $30 year bonds to carry out the purchase of the grounds and the necessary improvements thus bringing no hardships on any one, and giving the future generations a chance to participate in its great and lasting benefits with hopes of a brighter future get busy after the great Rock county fair is over and the Senatorial election.

I am respectfully.

INAMNITO.

Office of the Plumbing Inspector, City of Janesville, Wis., August 7, 1916.

Owing to the numerous complaints made at my office in reference to the sanitary condition of privy vaults existing in various parts of the city which are claimed to be a nuisance that should be abated, I feel that it is my duty to call the attention of the public to the provisions of the rules and regulations of the state board of health which have the same force and effect as a law of the state.

This law absolutely prohibits the use of privy vaults on premises where a public water supply or sewer is available and makes any person who maintains a privy vault under said conditions guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to punishment by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than three months or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars as provided for in section 959-56 of the Statutes of 1915.

G. W. Slightam, Plumbing Inspector.

AND THE CONGRESSMAN

Really Nothing Remarkable in Story of Man Who Sold Horse at So Much a Foot.

Two or three newspaper men and a congressman in Washington, who was a merchant in private life, were swapping yarns.

"I remember on one occasion," said the congressman, "having in stock a big lot of dry-goods remnants that seemed to stick right by me in spite of all I could do to get rid of them. At last I advertised to sell them at so much a pound, and the curiosity of people to see if they could get more at pound rates for their money than they could get at yard rates soon cleared out the stock. At another time I sold a lot of side meat at so much a square foot, taking the run of the side, and the customers who got bargains in the thick of the meat encouraged others who had the luck to get theirs out of the thin, so I evened up very nicely."

"That reminds me," remarked one of the correspondents, "of a horse I sold once at so much a foot."

"How was that?" inquired the congressman, somewhat puzzled. "How did you make your measurements? I can't understand how you might sell him at so much a hand, and coming out pretty well on it if he was a big fellow, sixteen or seventeen hands high, but I don't see how you got at him by the foot."

"That was easy enough. I simply sold him at so much a foot—$37.50."

"How much did you get for him?" and the congressman got out his pencil.

"A hundred and fifty dollars."

The congressman figured for about a sixteenth of a minute.

"I see," he said.

CONCRETE ROAD BEST

THINK U. S. EXPERTS

Have Every Advantage Over Any Other Kind of Highway Surface—Now Mix Oil With Material.

(TELETYPE FILE OF JOURNAL)
Washington, Aug. 8.—Concrete as a road-building material is of "perhaps more or less adaptation than any other material now in use," said Director Logan Walter Page of the Office of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture today.

Concrete, as sized up by the department, has the following advantages:
1. Durability under ordinary conditions.

2. A smooth, even surface, not too slippery.

3. Practically no dust.

4. Is easily cleaned and maintained at small cost until a patching or resurfacing becomes necessary.

5. A pleasing appearance.

6. Forms an excellent basis for other materials when resurfacing becomes necessary.

Its disadvantages are as follows:
1. Noisy under horse traffic.

2. Difficult to repair.

3. Cracks must be given prompt attention or deterioration will ensue.

Improved concrete for road building as well as for other purposes, that is proof against water absorption has been announced by the department in oil and concrete.

After extensive experiments with a view to producing a non-absorbent concrete mixture, the department found that the addition of ten per cent of heavy mineral oil to the Portland cement paste acted as an effective repellent to moisture. The susceptibility of concrete to water absorption had long been recognized as one of its inherent weaknesses as a road-building material.

The addition of the oil does not lower the tensile strength, the department has found, and has the further advantage of making the mixture impervious to the destructive action of alkali salts.

KENOSHA GOLFERS TAKE YULE TROPHY

Defeat Blue Mound, Milwaukee Team for Cup—Janesville Men Paired for Today's Trials.

The Kenosha Country club yesterday won the Yule trophy in the opening of play of the Wisconsin golfing tournament. With the trophy goes a gold medal to each of the five players of the victorious team. The Blue Mound Country Club of Milwaukee who last year captured the cup by the biggest score ever hung up was far down in the list yesterday.

Louis Allis and his son, Ned, really took the first cup of the championship when they captured the paternal and son, Phil, who won the cup in 1915, were second.

In the pairings for today's qualifying round, in the elimination eighteen hole medal score event for the field, Janesville players were paired with La Crosse, Milwaukee, Sheboygan and Appleton men. Stanley D. Tallman was paired with P. M. Gelatt of Sheboygan; Al Schaller with E. P. Ellis, III, of Milwaukee; Arthur P. Burnham with Steward Knudsen of Sheboygan and J. L. Wilcox with P. J. Edmonds of Appleton.

Weather conditions cause prediction of low scores throughout unless a change comes shortly. The heat is terrible for the players.

CUBS LOSE GAME

WITH OWN ERRORS

Giants Outbatted Two to One But Are Able to Push Three Across to Couple By Bruins.

Hans Lobert, pinch hitting for Schupp, drove in three runs with a double in the fifth inning of today's game, giving the Giants a 3 to 2 victory over the Cubs. His hit also led to the retirement of Jimmy Lavender from the box, Prendergast mounting the slab. Chicago outbatted the Giants two to one, but poor fielding in tight places led to Lavender's downfall.

BOSTON BLANKS REDS IN DOUBLE BILL, 2-0, 6-0

Although outbatted in both games Boston shut Cincinnati out twice yesterday, 2 to 0 and 6 to 0. Toney held the locals to two hits in the first game, but they came with men on. In the second Moseley allowed only six hits to ten by Allen, but lost effectiveness in the pinches.

BROWNS GOING UP; WIN MONDAY, 3-2

Take Sixth Place After Defeating Washington at St. Louis Yesterday Three to Two.

The Browns took sixth place yesterday with a 3 to 2 victory over Washington in ten innings. Shorten opened the last round with a line single off Johnson. Wallace sacrificed. Miller fanned and Sisler hit one over Rice's head that would have been good for a home run. Shorten walked home. Shorten scored all of the Brown's runs. In the first he scored on a wild pitch. In the third he bunted safely, stole second and scored on Sisler's infield single. Wellman allowed the Nationals to tie it in the eighth.

WHITE SOX WIN, 7-1 RETAIN LEAGUE LEAD

Boston Yesterday Proved as Easy to Trounce as the Submerged Philadelphians Last Week.

The Chicago White Sox mauled the Boston hose at Comiskey park yesterday and in a game sparkling with better baseball had no trouble in winning, 7 to 1. Red Russell went the route and had the Red Sox at bay throughout. They drew but seven hits while Dutch Leonard, the man most feared by the Sox, and Sam Jones, were on the mound for Boston. These two were touched for thirteen hits. Leonard staying in long enough to see five runs cross the plate and Jones permitting the final pair.

Nes' home run, Russell's steal home and also Eddie Collins' the latter all the way from second, and a squeeze play worked to perfection by Nes and Ray Schalk, were features.

The victory settled the Red Sox as game and a half behind the leaders and they were saved a tie for second place when New York fell before the Cleveland Indians. Further down in the list the St. Louis Browns came up a notch, into sixth position, when Washington took the count. The Senators are now apparently resting easily over the cellar door where the still unconscious Mackmen finally repose after doing their famous losing act in permitting the Tigers to move into them for their nineteenth straight defeat. If Philadelphia don't look out some major league records will be smashed to smithereens.

The Pale Horse and the Bright Horse clash again today. Even though the former lose, they will still be in the lead by half a game. Faber and Scott looked like the two best bets for the Rowland troupe this afternoon. Babe Ruth is almost sure to be called on by Carrigan.

Louis Guisto, a young first baseman playing with Portland in the Pacific Coast league, is getting the attention of lots of big league scouts and will probably appear in fast company before the close of the present season. Guisto is a graduate of St. Mary's college, which institution has turned out some very excellent ball players in the past, among whom are such as Harry Hooper, Duffy Lewis, Eddie Burns and Dutch Leonard. Guisto is a track star and can show some nifty records at speed. He is a big boy, weighing something like two hundred, and puts a great deal of strength and weight into his swings at bat. He leads the Coast league in distance hits, having made something like eleven home runs at last accounts.

An interesting "bone" play is related wherein Niles, a Boston player, in a game several years ago between

THESE STARS OF RING HAVE SHONE BUT NONE HAS EVER WORN A CROWN

The title-holders are not always the best in the business and there are a number of fighters in the ring's history who have been among the first stars of the profession and yet have never worn the crown. Bob Mohr, Leach Cross, Frankie Burns, Jimmy Britt, Mike Gibbons and Harlem Tommy Murphy are particular instances.

Boston and Washington, got a three-bagger with a man on base and when the play came to an end Niles was on third and the player who had been on first when Niles was at bat was on second. Some confusion followed and no one seemed to know quite what had happened. It appears that with the runner on first Niles had hit a long fly into the outfield and the fielder made a great run to get under the ball. The runner at first spent some time in waiting to see whether the fly was caught or not, but Niles with his head lowered and all speed on chased around the sacks. The fielder dropped the ball and Niles seemed to be safe on third until it was seen what he had done and then they called him out.

The Yanks win ball games in spite of their many crimples and with poor pitching. The team can't be shoved aside. They come up from behind and grab enough runs to win, no matter how discouraging things may seem. Bill Donovan has been successful in putting them with an excellent spirit. It is just about the same mood that was seen in the Braves of 1914, and with any sort of a chance the Yanks are likely to show they are the real championship class.

MIKAMI, JAP, STARS IN EASTERN TENNIS

Hashishiro Mikami.

Hashishiro Mikami, Jap tennis star and doubles partner of the better known Kumagae, has been showing a new burst of speed in his eastern matches. He had been considered not the strongest singles player of the two, but has been besting some of the fastest of the eastern stars.

WISCONSIN BANKERS CO-OPERATE TO AID FARM DEVELOPMENT

Dean Russell Declares Farm Credit Problem Is Being Worked Out By Home Talent In This State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—"Wisconsin bankers occupy a most progressive position which they have assumed in aiding rational agricultural development."

This was the statement of Dean N. L. Russell this afternoon before the group of five hundred bankers who are here attending the annual convention.

"Bankers and commercial clubs are joining hands in helping to finance the needs of the settler with reference to the introduction of livestock and other agricultural requirements. The rural credit problem in Wisconsin is being solved by home talent in a most sane and healthful way."

Address By S. M. Smith. One of the features of the opening of the convention this morning was the address of S. M. Smith of Janesville, president of the association.

"A rural credit law is now a part of our banking system," said Mr. Smith. "How it will work out, no one at this time can say; it will complicate banking and credit problems and will mean more expense and red tape supervision and reports. I do not like to appear a destructive critic, but it seems to me that this law is unnecessarily cumbersome and will not aid the situation that it is claimed demanded it."

George D. Bartlett, secretary, in his report to the association this morning said that the membership of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association was 843 and that there were 860 banks in the state. He declared that most of the banks of the state were members of the Bankers' Mutual Casualty company. He recommended a course especially for the training of bank clerks and recommended group insurance for the employees of banks.

Skating Is Old Pastime. Skating, the origin of which is lost in antiquity, was mentioned by a Danish historian in 1184, and English authorities state that in Lincolnshire there was skating even before the twelfth century, the custom having been introduced there from Holland. The Eskimos used bone skates when they were first discovered by the whites, and probably had done so for centuries.

Daily Thought.

To do with as few things as we can, and, as far as we can, to see to it that these things are the work of freedom and not of slaves; these two seem to me to be the main duties to be fulfilled by those who wish to live a life at once free and refined, serviceable to others and pleasant to themselves.—William Morris.

THE GOOD JUDGE FINDS MOST MEN KNOW WHY THEY USE W-B CUT TOBACCO.

SEE YOU GENTLEMEN, USE W-B CUT TOBACCO, MAY I ASK WHY? ITS QUALITY, TOBACCO-CUT FINE AND SEASONED WITH SALT, SO A LITTLE CHEW SATISFIES. YES, AND A MAN DOESN'T HAVE TO GRIND AND SPIT LIKE THOSE WHO USE ORDINARY TOBACCO.

YOU can't hide the truth—that's why men who use W-B CUT Chewing know what quality tobacco is. A small chew of the real tobacco tucked away in the cheek gives men the tobacco satisfaction they want.

A gentleman's chew—it cuts down grinding and spitting and there's no unwieldy wad to roll around in your mouth or to plug the cheek. Give W-B CUT Chewing the quality test and learn what tobacco satisfaction is.

The Best Beer Brewed

—the leader for half a century—pure, wholesome, sanitary—always the same—always good."

Dr. Edward Gudeman in an address before the Chicago Chapter of the American Society of Chemists said: "Beer and Milk are affinities. Both are produced from similar raw materials. Has beer a food value? I don't think anyone will deny it has a great food value, nearly equal to that of milk. It is a food, a condiment, a stimulant and sometimes a delicacy."

The Triangular label on all BLATZ Beer is a guarantee of uniform purity and flavor.

BIG BROTHER OF GERMAN 42-CENTIMETER USED ON FRENCH FRONT

A 16-inch shell; hoisting a 400-mm up to its gun on the French western front.
One of the new French 400-mm (or, approximately, 16-inch) shells fired by the giant ordnance now being employed in the great offensive on the western front is seen here, about to be placed in a gun. It matches the huge projectiles of the giant Shkoda and Krupp howitzers, of which so much was heard in the earlier stages of the war.

BRITISH EXPECTING TEMPORARY REVERSE IN GIGANTIC DRIVE

Foremost Authority on Military Affairs in England Sees German Opposition Temporarily.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, August 8.—When the bombardment ceased on the morning of July 1st, and the Allied troops left their trenches in the Big Push on a twenty-five mile front, they did not expect and even steady advance. A rigid line of German fortifications stretches from Neuport to the Alps. There are no gaps. The defense has its first position, consisting of several trench lines; an intermediate position; and a second and final position some way back, of the same type as the first. The labors of eighteen months have made each position a miracle of human ingenuity—a labyrinth of trenches and a subterranean city of dug-outs.

No such front can be broken at the first attempt. The path of wisdom is to attack on a broad front and take the thing by steady stages—to capture one position at a time, and to attack with infantry only when the guns have done their work.

In the area of attack, of which Albert the point of division, the Germans on the north were prepared and the high plateau over which their lines ran was a formidable obstacle to any advance. In the southern part the ground was easier, the enemy weaker and a real surprise was achieved.

The British objective in the north, the enemy's first position, except at one or two points, was not attained. Villages were blotted out and miles of country reduced to the appearance of a ploughed field by the Allied bombardment, but the German guns, well hidden behind the ridges were intact and before the hour came for the British to cross their parapets they opened a counter bombardment on the British first line. That line was largely destroyed, but the British infantry, under a devastating artillery fire, advanced steadily across No Man's Land between the lines.

Then the German first trenches broke. Their occupants had retreated to the deepest dug-outs, sometimes fifty feet below the ground. They now appeared and manned their front lines, firing with machine guns and automatic rifles. Both sides showed the most conspicuous gallantry.

The attack as a whole was broken up before it reached the German first line. Whole battalions disappeared as fighting units. By the evening of the first day the enemy's position in the northern section was unshaken. It was different in the south. There the Allies had the benefit of a real surprise. The German reply to their bombardment was very feeble. In some places the initial bombardment seemed to have destroyed resistance, and the attack advanced with scarcely a casualty across trenches filled with German dead. In a few hours the immediate objective was completely attained. All the German first position was carried on a front of more than twelve miles. One French regiment had only two wounded and the casualties of one whole corps were under 800. The German losses were very high. Crossing the captured ground on the following day one walked among piles of German dead.

The first stage of the attack was beyond doubt a great Allied success. The objective was completely attained on an ample front and the way prepared for the stroke against the final German position. Without the sacrifice in the north the success of the British right wing and the French would have been impossible.

We are only looking at the beginning of the greatest battle in history. It will be a slow and costly fight, for Germany knows it is her last stand. The Allies will pursue their plan soberly and methodically, with no attempt at blind rushes or wild ventures.

The German man-power is shrinking fast. They have been compelled to send divisions from Verdun to help Hindenburg against Russia, and in providing reserves for the present battle they have been driven to scrape up battalions from every western front. Reserves obtained in this way, men already wearied with much fighting, must inevitably be a trial to lean upon. One battalion hurried up from the South was captured intact by the British an hour or two after it had detrained.

A French officer who was asked about the capture of guns, replied: "We do not want guns, Krupp can manufacture them faster than we can take them. But Krupp cannot manufacture men."

TWO CONFESSIONS

By EARL SILVERS.

Henry Riker had been at the Fern-cliff boarding house just thirteen days, and during that time he had won the worshipful admiration of Mildred Graydon. He was to go home on the morrow. In spite of the fact that the board was only five dollars a week and the majority of the guests were shop girls, he had had a delightful time. But that had been because of Mildred. She seemed different from the other girls; her voice was softer, her clothes simpler, her English better. She didn't say "Ain't that wonderful?"

They had both arrived on the same day and had met at supper. After that they had been together continually, until Henry admitted to himself that he was almost in love. But on the evening before he was to return to the daily grind of business he stood on the veranda of the low, rambling farmhouse and looked dejectedly at two chickens pecking aimlessly on the front lawn. He was about to make a confession, and he didn't know how Mildred would take it.

Henry looked up and smiled at a dark-haired, blue-eyed girl tripped lightly down the steps and accosted him.

"Are we going out on the lake?" she asked.

"If you want to."

They made their way together to the small lake, unchained a rather dilapidated looking boat and embarked. For a time both were silent. Then the girl spoke.

"I wonder—" she let her eyes rest on his for a moment—"I wonder if we will ever see each other again."

He looked startled.

"Why, of course, won't we?"

"I don't know; I've read a lot about these summer affairs, and have seen movies, too. They never seem to last very long."

"Maybe it won't be so with us," he said finally.

"Why maybe?" She looked at him questioning.

"I've got a confession to make," he announced hesitatingly. "But I don't know whether I ought to make it or not."

"What kind of a confession?"

"About myself. I've come up here with all these shop girls and clerks and made believe that I am one of them." A slight tinge of red crept over his forehead. "But I'm not. My father is E. P. Riker, the big manufacturer, and we've loads and loads of money."

"And you came up here?" She seemed incredulous.

"Yes. I came for the fun of the thing—just to see what it would be like."

"Oh!" He didn't look up; he was afraid to meet her eyes.

"And now," he concluded, "you'll probably think I have been playing with you. But I haven't; I'm really crazy about you."

He made bold this time to glance at her, but instead of the hurt look he expected he surprised a smile on her face.

"Don't you care?" he asked.

"Why, no!" She continued to smile at him. "I knew you weren't one of those people as soon as I saw you. That's why I let you go with me so much. My father is Arthur Graydon, the big New York doctor."

"What?" His jaw dropped from sheer amazement.

"Yes, I am Doctor Graydon's daughter. I'm glad to know that you are what you are, because now you can come to see me in New York."

"Yes," he answered, "that will be fine."

But, somehow, his words failed to carry conviction. He took up the oars and rowed slowly toward the shack which was called a boathouse. The girl, too, seemed rather thoughtfully silent, and he ventured to glance at her. He was struck with the sudden desire to reach over and touch her hand; but he did not. Neither said a word until the boat struck the bank with a dull thud. Then the man spoke.

"I've got another confession to make," he said, and this time his voice was steady. "I've just been lying to you. My father is Tom Riker, and he works in a factory in Hoboken. I'm a floor-walker in Tracy's."

"What?" This time it was the girl who registered amazement.

"Yes," he continued, "I'm a four-finisher. I thought at first that this was only a summer flirtation and that we would forget about it as soon as we went home. So I told you I was rich in order to make a good impression. But, as soon as you told me who you really are, I realized that I—that I—cared for you. But now, I guess it's all over!"

The girl was silent for a moment, but when she spoke her voice equaled his in frankness.

"I've got a confession to make, too," she said softly. "I never laid my eyes on Doctor Graydon; I never laid my finger on a building on Fulton street."

"And you're not rich?" His eyes gleamed hopefully.

"No," she answered. "I'm poor; I'm a shopgirl in Baumann's."

"Would you marry a man who makes eighteen dollars a week?"

"Yes," she looked at him bravely. He took up the oars, his face alight with a new understanding.

"Let's row out to the end of the lake," he said.

Its Probable Meaning.

"I see they have just dug up a cornerstone of a library in Greece on which was inscribed '4,000 B. C.'," remarked a student to a Scotchman. "What do you suppose it means?" "It cannot mean but one thing," answered the Scot, solemnly, "Before Carnegie."—Christian Register.

PROHIBITION ISSUE QUESTION FOR TEXAS

Matter Is Big Question Before Democratic Convention of State Which Opened Today.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Houston, Texas, Aug. 8.—The part the prohibition question will play in Texas politics for the next year was the predominant issue before the state Democratic convention which opened here today. The convention will continue until the party's business of adopting a platform, ratifying the candidates nominated in the state primary July 22, electing a state executive committee and other routine matters are finished.

Coming on the heels of a referendum election in which the proposition to submit to a constitutional amendment for statewide prohibition received a favorable majority of 2,462 votes out of more than 360,000 cast, prohibition is generally considered the greatest political issue in Texas at the present time.

Political observers predict that the Democratic platform would be based on it. That it would have an important bearing in deciding the run-off between Senator Charles A. Culbertson and former Governor O. B. Colquitt for the United States senatorial nomination, and that for the coming year at least the Democratic party would be perceptibly divided on that question.

The results of the July 22 primary, when "abstinence" carried, were expected to give much material for debate and speculation. Political precedents in Texas show that almost all state races and questions are divided with the same proportion of votes. In that primary however, Governor James E. Ferguson, who is against statewide prohibition, was renominated by a majority of 67,000 over Charles H. Morris, known as the prohibition candidate.

Make the Occasion.

Young men talk of trusting to the spur of occasion. That trust is in vain. Occasions cannot make spurs. If you expect to wear spurs you must win them. If you wish to use them you must buckle them to your own heels before you go into the fight.—James A. Garfield.

Poets' Praise of Ale.

More poets have been inspired in modern times by Bransenos ale, brewed at Bransenos college, Oxford, than by any other malt liquor of recent memory. At one time it was a custom for the college butler on every Tuesday to present a collection of ale-praising verse to the principal and receive a sum of money. Several of these outpourings, the writing of undergraduates, have appeared in book form.

Neat Retort.

A physician, passing a stonemason's shop, called out: "Good morning, Mr. Jones. Hard at it, I see. I suppose you finish them as far as 'In memory of' and then wait to see who wants a monument next?" "Well, yes," replied the old man, "unless I hear somebody's ill and you're attending them, then I keep right on."
